

Panel discussion on neologisms in medical Latin
(Athenis Finlandiae, 27th August, 2010)

Doc. Reijo Pitkäranta, MedL Laura Mikkonen, PhD Erkki Palmén

Although most medical terms have their established Latin appellations, there are, in this field, many words which still lack the Latin equivalent. The panelists are going to introduce such cases and, will, on the basis of the ideas brought up during the discussion, suggest an official Latin translation for each of them. These neologisms could then be included in the Latin part of the International Classification of Diseases maintained by the WHO.

Those willing to contribute to the completing of the Latin medical vocabulary are invited to mail the words which they would like to be translated to the following address: reijo.pitkaranta@elisanet.fi . The final day for postings is 15th August, 2010.
